Located in Bijagual, Sarapiquí, this extraordinary 10-hectare (24.7-acre) property represents a rare window of opportunity for pure conservation, a low-impact ecotourism project, or a boutique biological research site. The property sits in a truly strategic position, serving as a functional core piece within the San Juan-La Selva Biological Corridor and the global Jaguar Corridor Initiative. Bordered on three sides by uninterrupted, mature forest and located less than 3 km from the massive Braulio Carrillo National Park, it acts as a vital highway for wildlife movement. Here, nature thrives completely undisturbed. What Makes This Paradise Unique: Rainforest & Pristine Rivers: Features 9 hectares of lush, advanced-succession rainforest and is traversed year-round by two pristine rivers (Bijagual and Bijagualito) with crystal-clear waters and natural swimming pools.
